Gen. Chaffee went to his office after breakfast yesterday, accompanied by Capt. Lindsay, one of his aides, and Col. Barry, who has been in charge of the island since Gen. Brooke was retired. Here a mass of correspondence was awaiting his attention and this occupied him until lunch time. Speaking of the situation in the Philippines Gen. Chaffee said: pines Gen. Chaffee said:

I do not consider that a state of insurrection exists there. Since the decisive victory of our troops at Malabar last spring there has been nothing like an organized opposition to the Government. I saw in a newspaper as I came across the country that a band of ladrones had attacked the constabulary in Leyte and had killed and wounded several.

lary in Leyte and had killed and wounded several.

In Leyte and in Samar the highwaymen who make war against our Government are particularly bold. This system of brigandage has existed in the islands for many years and it will be some time before it will be entirely stamped out. An efficient constabulary will end it in time.

We have now in the Philippines a constabulary force of 6,000 men. I am not in a position to speak of the efficiency of the constabulary. Well armed and well directed it is a force which should compel peace and order.

it is a force which should compel peace and order.

Where provinces have been compelled to deliver up their outlaws and the prisoners have been treated as they should be the constabulary has had less trouble than in other provinces. In the island of Leyte some 600 bandits were delivered up. They were simply coaxed to come in, and when they were in our hands they were not punished. What is the result? They do not hesitate to return to their old practices. They are the sort of people who must be forced to respect law and order. The trouble in Leyte is that the power of the Government was not exhibited to them. Eight companies of Regulars are in Leyte in ease they are needed, but under the general order which I issued when in command of the Department they move only at the call of the Governor of the island. Gov Grant tells me that when the constabulary is better trained there it will be possible to maintain absolute peace.

PROF. CALDWELL RESIGNS. One of Six Old Professors of Cornell Who Will Have Retired by June Next.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 21.-After a service with Cornell University which began almost with the founding of the institution in 1868, Prof. G. C. Caldwell, head of the department of chemistry, tendered his resignation to-day and it was accepted by that body and will take effect immediately. Prof. Caldwell was 68 years old and under the rules recently adopted he would have had two years to serve before being retired under the age limit, which was fixed at 70 years. He was the first professor appointed by Cornell at a time when the science of agricultural chemistry was first becoming known.

Prof. Caldwell will not sever his connection with Cornell, but will be special lecturer in chemistry until June, 1909, with duties to be assigned by President Schur-man.

The resignation of Prof. Caldwell, coming as it does closely on the heels of that of Dean Fuertees, illustrates how the old professors who have been here for years are giving up their hard labors to younger men. By June, 1903, six of the best-known professors will either have been retired under the age limit or will have resigned. These men are Francis L. Finch, dean of the college of law and former Justice of the Court of Appeals; I. P. Roberts, director of the college of agriculture; Hiram Corson, head of the department of English literature, and Charles Mellen Tyler, professor of religion and Christian ethics, retired, and Dean Fuertees of the civil engineering department and Prof. professors will either have been retired engineering department and Prof. Caldwell, resigned

HARD WORKING BURGLARS. Lugged a Truck Load of General Dry Goods Through a Narrow Opening

Three of Capt. Titus's detectives and several men from the Eldridge street station are investigating a burglary which occurred on Wednesday night in the drygoods store of Steinhardt & Strasbourger in Manila-General Thinks a Strong at 283-85 Grand street. The store occu-Hand Necessary in the Philippines. pies the ground floor and basement. The vard in the rear of the house is on a level with the basement floor. The windows looking out upon it are narrow and have when Major-Gen. Adna R. Chaffee as- heavy iron bars. Tenements surround the yard on all sides. Max Steinhardt, senior member of the firm, was the first to arrive on Thursday morning, reaching the place about 8 o'clock. He found everything in the store over turned and a trail of dropped articles leading to one of the basement windows in the rear, two of the iron bars of which had been sawed through.

Steinhardt immediately notified Capt Hogan of the Eldridge street station.

The next thing he did was to take an inventory of the stock. This showed, according to Store Manager Meyer, that $14,000 worth of goods had disappeared, enough Mr. Meyer said, to fill a two-horse wagon. Partner Steinhardt said yesterday that the less to the firm amounted to day that the loss to the firm amounted to $20,000 "or more." Capt. Titus thought it impossible that the thieves could have got away with more than $3,000 or $4,000 worth of goods.

The police said yesterday, after looking over the place, that the thieves must have taken the stuff out through the narrow opening in the basement window and then opening in the basement window and then carried it across the yard and through the hallway of one of the adjoining tenements to either Allen or Eldridge street. If they choose the Eldridge street side, which was the nearer, they must have had their truck waiting for them right in front of the Twelfth precinct police station.

Manager Meyer said that a light is kept burning in the store every night and that a watchman is employed to guard it.

MUST SUPPORT ANOTHER'S WIFE That's the Predicament the Composer "Dolly Gray" Says He's In.

The mixed marital relations of Paul Barnes, who wrote "Dolly Gray," and other songs, were tangled up still further yesterday afternoon when he appeared before Magistrate Pool in the West Side police court to give bonds to pay his wife, Nellie Adelaide, $11 a week. Barnes, who is known off the stage as George F. Feger, was arrested two weeks ago and arraigned in the Yorkville police court on a charge of non-support. Feger set up in defence a Chicago divorce, which Magistrate Pool deided was no good. The Magistrate thereupon ordered the song writer to pay the $11. When the matter came before Magistrate Pool again yesterday Patrick J. O'Beirne, counsel for Feger, wanted to reopen the case on the strength of new evidence. A man whose name he would not tell had read of the case against Feger, he said, and recog-nized the complainant as the woman to whom he was married in 1887 by the Rev. John F. Steen. A visit to the vital statis-tics at the Health Department, Mr. O'Beirne said, confirmed this story. The first hus-band, he added, was about to bring an ac-tion for divorce against Mrs. Feger, naming Feger as the corespondent.

Magistrate Pool thought that he had no right to reopen the case after having made an order against Feger, but finally gave Mr. O'Beirne a week to submit a brief in the question. Feger gave bonds to pay his wife the $11 a week.

TRADE IN CANCELLED STAMPS

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA BUY CHILDREN WITH THEM.

Many Soaked Off Envelops by Little Sisters of the Poor and Sent to Orient. Whence, Perhaps, They Return, Cleaned and Regummed. Ready to Be Used Again.

For many years the United States postal outhorities and others have heard rumors that somebody was willing to pay a fabulous amount for 1,000,000 cancelled postage stamps. The somebody has never been definitely named, but it has been vaguely stated that the proceeds of the stamps would be devoted to charity and that some wealthy individual would pay the premium Perhaps an episode brought to light in Newark may shed a little light upon the matter. Yesterday Postal Inspector J. L. Cortelyou, a brother of President Roosevelt's secretary, and United States Marshal John Garside, of Newark, arrested in that city Henry Boisseaue, a Frenchman, 70 years old, who is an inmate of the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor. Boisseaue is a veteran of three wars. His arrest was brought about by a salve manufacturer in this city who notified the postal authorities that he had greed to exchange postage stamps for salve to use upon his feet. Salves were sent to him and washed stamps were received in exchange, it is said. The old man was then arrested and his room in the home was visited. At least 50,000 stamps were found soaking in a least 50,000 stamps were found soaking in a washtub.

The Mother Superior of the institution said that Boisseaue had nothing to do with the collection of these stamps, but that he and other aged inmates were employed to soak them from the envelopes, dry them and arrange them for shipment to China where they brought a good price and were highly esteemed for wall decorations.

Boisseaue said yesterday that he did not know that he was doing anything wrong in offering cancelled stamps and that he made no attempt to efface the cancellation marks.

no attempt to efface the cancellation marks.

Lawyer Michael T. Barrett went upon his bond for $200. An examination will be held on Dec. 5. The sisters said that the stamps had high value in the eyes of the Chinese and that Christian workers exchanged them for that Christian workers exchanged them for children who were adopted and brought up in the Christian faith by the missionaries. It has been suspected for years that these stamps came back to San Francisco from China, rejuvenated and gummed afresh, but the postal authorities have never been able to prove a case

BLACKMAILER FINDS A FRIEND Chief of Police Murphy Will Try to Help

Him-Denies Writing Moody Letter. Botho Strubel, the seventeen-year-old ship's cook who came to grief in Hoboken on Wednesday, has found a friend in Chief of Police Murphy of Jersey City, to whom behind this year," Mme. Schumann-Heink he confessed that he wrote the blackmailsaid yesterday, "to take care of the rest of | ing letters to wealthy men in this city and n Jersey City, commanding them to assist band of bloodthirsty Russian Nihilists n need of funds or run the risk of having heir careers cut short by poison.

The Chief said last night that he will to what he consistently can to get the poy out of his trouble.

"I have taken a decided liking to the kid," said the Chief. "There is something about him that would get almost anybody's confidence. I am going to write to-morrow to the boy's father, who is a chief of police in one of the suburbs of Hamburg, explaining how his son yielded to tempta-tion when he was hard up and tried to make some easy money. Strubel will be tion when he was hard up and thed to make some easy money. Strubel will be arraigned in the Second Criminal Court to-morrow and will be remanded to the county jail until I can get a reply from his father. Then we will see what can be done to save the kid from further pun-shment. We might find somebody who would be willing to give him a job."

Strubel asked the police yesterday not to send him from the city prison to the county jail because he wanted to stay near the chief. Detective Prescott of Jersey City got registered letter at the New York Post Office yesterday which came to Strubel from Germany. It contains a document showing that an express company has forwarded a trunk to the boy from his mother. The trunk is at Austin Baldwin & Co.'s express office, at 53 Broadway. It is filled with clothes. As $7.70 is due for express charges young Strubel was unable end for it Detective Carroll of Brooklyn visited Detective Carroll of Brooklyn visited Jersey City police headquarters yesterday to ascertain if Strubel was the author of the threatening letter received by Leonard Moody, a real estate dealer of 20 Court street, Brooklyn, calling upon him to hand up $1,500 or be poisoned or sandbagged. Strubel denied sending the letter and said that he had never heard of Moody. Carroll and Chief Murphy failed to find any resemblance between the writing in the Moody letter and the letters which the youth admitted that he wrote. Murphy said he was convinced that Strubel had a cheap imitation in somebody who had probably read of the ship's cook's blackmailing scheme.

MORE WATER NEEDED AT ONCE. ommissioner Monroe Asks That Experts Find Out Where to Get It.

Commissioner Monroe of the Department f Water Supply, Gas and Electricity has written to the Mayor asking for the appointment of a commission to report upon the water supply problem. After pointing out the inadequacy of the water sup-plies received from existing and projected sources for the different boroughs. Col. Monroe asserts that immediate steps must be taken to prevent waste, "and for Monroe asserts that infinitely seek in the taken to prevent waste, "and for securing an increased supply of water from a source or sources not hitherto developed."

A source or sources not hitherto developed." He continues:

The most available source of supply must be determined and the actual construction of new water works must be commencedall without delay. This has already been appreciated, and a foundation has been laid. The problem has received serious attention from prior administrations, and from my predecessors in this department. Independent associations have made a careful study of this subject, and the results of their labors appear in printed reports. Much available data, is therefore, at hand.

I ask that you submit specific recommendations and completed plans, three engineers of recognized prominence, and not in any way connected with the government of this city. The recommendations of such a body of engineers as to the best method of preventing waste and as to other measures for the utilization of the present water supply to the utmost, especially until other sources can be made available, will be equally valuable.

Prevention of waste and saving of water cannot, in the judgment of this department, be made a substitute for extension of source of supply, but there will be a period of greater or less duration, when a fixed and limited supply will be required to meet the demands of a rapidly increasing body of consumers This emergency is unavoidable, and for this reason prevention of waste is a phase of the problem of imminent importance.

These folks are the sensible kind, who know good reading. But once more let it be said right here that one can't tell in this announcement one tenth of the good stories that one issue of THE SUNDAY SUN will contain.

FOR WOMEN:

All About the Fashions.

A whole page telling about the gowns the women wore at the some of the pale grey or the light blue or the black velvet ones will make your mouth water to read about. Told interestingly, too, which is why some old bachelors know all about the styles They read THE SUNDAY SUN.

How Woman Walks Now.

You know they change the style from year to year. If you'd be in the fashion you had better find out how to walk this year, madame. The expert who told THE SUNDAY SUN man would charge you a whole lot more than five cents for the knowledge.

Her Mouth Made Pretty.

How the thin-lipped girl is improving her looks. This is the very latest wrinkle escaped from the beauty parlors—with Rich Girls at School.

There is a place where millions don't count. This is the place. You'd never believe what hard rules they have there. Only five frocks ordered at a time and pocket money and

Where Poor Girls are Barred. A revelation of the meanness of some hostesses. Young bachelors with next to nothing a year are favored but the poor girl, however pretty she may be, hasn't a chance to enter the charmed circle. A man who read this in advance was glad he wasn't a girl.

FOR EVERYBODY:

Roosevelt Among the Black Folks. series of good stories about the President's trip and the phases of negro life he saw—told interestingly by a SUN correspondent in THE SUN style, and well worth reading.

The Purple Mother at Home.

Telling just what the interesting Mrs. Katherine Tingley, about whom Commodore Gerry hinted such things the other day, is doing with her school at Point Loma. What she does with the money she gets and approximately how much she has got out of the faithful.

College Slang. Details of a live and growing language collected from the colleges. If you don't hike yourself over and get a SUNDAY SUN before the boy comes home for Thanksgiving you'll never know what he's talking about. Better read up!

The Real Horse Show. This is not a description of the scenes in Madison Square Garden. You don't have to wait a week to read about those if you buy THE SUN. These are pictures and a good story about the funny things you see all over town in Horse Show week, the queer folks who come here, yet maybe never go to the show. You'll recognize the pictures and laugh over them.

The Marble City's Story.

A tale from a special correspondent of the wonderful growth and development of the South's resources as the city of Knox-ville shows it. Facts and figures in it, which every patriotic American and every business man will find keenly interesting.

The Big Show Abroad.

All about the Emperors that were amazed, the castles that were bill-boarded and railroad kings who were flabbergasted by a display of American enterprise taken to their very doors. Good stories of the adventures of the greatest that ever was in

Luckier than the President. A veracious narrative of the hunter who did get a bear and was up a stump just the same. You see the bear was wearing a bullet proof coat. To tell any more before you read the story would spoil it. The Park's Great Parade. New Yorkers of the last generation if they could see Central Park and the costly equipages and gowns that fill it on fine days would rub their eyes and think they were somewhere else. The story and the pictures THE SUNDAY SUN will print to-morrow will tell what this scene looks like. It is a circle to awaken every citizen's pride. Read it sight to awaken every citizen's pride. Read it! THESE ARE ONLY A FEW OF THE THINGS TO BE IN TO-MORROW'S SUN-DAY SUN. AS USUAL THERE WILL BE BESIDES THESE Good Hunting Stories. Good Fiction Stories, Good News Stories.

GOOD READING FOR EVERYBODY WHO IS ALIVE AND CAN READ ENGLISH IN TO-MORROW'S
